HUNTINGTON'S WEALTH. SAGE SAYS TWENTY MILLIONS.

In addition to his other vast interests, Huntington enjoyed the reputation of being one of the largest, if not the largest single land owner in the country. Of his real estate holdings, the property owned by him in cities was only a small part. He also held title to large farming tracts, as well as to vast undeveloped areas in California, Kentucky and West Virginia, and in New Mexico and Guatemala. Compared financially with some of his other enterprises, Huntington's operations in New York City real estate seem insignificant, yet considered by themselves, they were of considerable magnitude. Some of the holdings were acquired several years ago, and at the time of his death he owned vacant property on Manhattan Island worth aeveral hundred thousand dollars. Besides, he owned several large tracts in the Bronx.

Perhaps the largest real-estate deal in which Huntington engaged in this city was the purchase of the northwest.

J. C. Stubbs, second vice-president and traffic manager of the company, was deeply moved at the news of Huntington's death. Stubbs has been intimately associated with Huntington for over twenty years. Sneaking of or over twenty years. intimately associated with Huntington for over twenty years. Speaking of his death today, Stubbs said:

"The news of the death of Mr. Huntington is paralyzing. I can hardly believe that such a hale and hearty man has gone to the great beyond. He used to tell me that he expected to pass the century mark, and I really thought he would realize his expectations. His dominant will and keen perceptive faculties were the foundation of his success. Nothing daunted him, and to lose him now grieves me deeply."

"H. E. Huntington's election as first vice-president was taken at the time to mean that he would reach the top of the railroad ladder on his uncle's death. It remains to be seen how he fares by his uncle's will and what part he will take in the management of the estate. Young Huntington is the only director living on this Coast. All the rest live in or near New York, the company's headquarters. Huntington handled the company's affairs in New York for years as first vice-president. Some of the nephew's friends point to this fact and say it is not at all improbable that he will be made president, and that a first vice-president will be selected by the Speyers to live in New York and act in conjunction with them in the management of the company's financial affairs.

"Be that as it may, most of the officials out here will not be surprised if Charles H. Tweed of New York is made president. He is one of the leading corporation and railroad lawyers of the East; has been Huntington's confidential attorney for years, is a director of the company, and is said to have the confidence of the Speyers. If young Huntington or Tweed is not to be the new president, it is admitted that the Espeyers have the power, and will select somebody from outside the company."

It was during his last visit here that we had a talk regarding the terms of our existence, and he told me that his father had lived to reach the age of ninety-six years, and from what he said, regarding his own lease of life, I know that he expected to live even longer than that. I am extremely sorry that his death has come at this time, just when all his plans have been about successfully consummated."

BAN FRANCISCO. Aug. 14.—Public Administrator Boland has filed a petition for general and special letters of administration on the estate of Collis P. Huntington. The petition alleges that the decedent left property and interests in this State of unknown value, and that there is need of some one to look after it. Wherefore Boland prays the court to appoint him administrator and caretaker of the estate.

When the petition was presented to Presiding Judge Bahrs this afternoon, he refused to assign the cose to any court, saying that it was unnecessary and improper at this early day.

BAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14.—Attormey Bassett, acting for Boland, also made application direct to Judge Coffey for special letters of administration without informing His Honor of his ill success with Judge Bahrs. A petition for the issuance of general letters of administration to the Public Administration to the Public Administrator was set for hearing. August 27.

Attorneys Dunne and Foulds explained to Judge Bahrs, and subsequently to Judge Coffey that, aside from the question of the right of the Public Administrator in the case, practically no estate had been left in California by the deceased. They said that the residence on California street had always been in Mrs. Huntington's name, since its purchase from Mrs. Colton, and that a lot in Oakland, one in Berkeley and two mortgages held as security for promissory notes constituted all of the estate that was held in California. It was not known to them whether Huntington left a will or not. BAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14.—Attor-

STORY OF HIS ROADS.

How Huntington Built the Central Pacific.

Despite All Obstacles He Accomplished Great Undertakings.

One of the early California pioneers was a young civil engineer upon whom the "Forty-niners" looked with amusement as a dreamer of dreams. He thought he could build a railroad over the mountains to the East. His name was Theodore D. Judah, and he found encouragement at last from four Sacramento merchants. One of them was Connecticut Yankee who rather a Connecticut Yankee who rather thought there was something in this railroad business. This Yankee was then running a hardware store in Sacramento, but he was destined to become a great railroad magnate. His name was Collis P. Huntington.

Huntington felt a friendly interest in Huntington felt a friendly interest in Judah to begin with because they were from the same State. There was another hardware man who believed in Judah and his great scheme. This was Mark Hookins. Then there was a small dry-goods merchant named Charles Crocker and a grocer, Leland Stanford. They all believed there was samething in it.

Judah had been to Washington, but could not get Congress sufficiently interested or could not override the opposition. At any rate, these four little merchants had to get their shoulders to the wheel and start the thing soins.

ders to the wheel and start the thing going.

They hadn't much money. Oh, such a little bit of money to start a railroad with!

Still they were not dismayed, and with such means as they had, sent Judah back to peek around for a loophole through the mountains. Engineers who came years afterward learned how well the brilliant young fellow did his work. Huntington, the scheme.

FAIRLY STARTED. June 28, 1861, only a few days after Mr. Stanford had been nominated for Governor of California, this dream of the Sacramento merchants resolved itself into the incorporation of a railroad. They named it the Central Pacific Railroad Company of California. They named it the Central Pacific Railroad Company of California. The president of the company was Stanford, the grocer; the vice-president, Huntington, the hardware merchant; the treasurer, Hopkins, the hardware man. James Balley, a jeweler of Sacramento, was the secretary, and Judah, chlef engineer. Charles Crocker became one of the directors of the concern.

The capital stock was $5,500,000, divided into shares of $100 each.
Stanford, Huntington, Hopkins, Judah and Crocker each took 156 shares. The subscribers had to pay up $10 a share, and this was used as a working fund. Others people had subscribed about as much as those named, but in time nearly all of them dropped out, except Edwin B. Crocker.

In October of this same year Judah was sent back to Washington again to see what could be done with Congress. It happened that he went back with Anron A. Sorgent, a Congressman from California, who happened later to be put on the Pacific Railroad Committee, to fill a vacancy. Judah told him all about his dream of a transcontinental line.

The result of it was that a new bill came before Congress, made of some of the best features of former transcontinental bills. It provided for the construction of two roads, or a west nnd east end of a transcontinental line. Judah had met in New York United States Senator James A. McDougall and had interested him in the plan; so in 1862 there was passed an actific might construct its line from Misrouri River to the Pacific Ocean and to secure to the government the use of the same for postal and military and other purposes."

It was provided that the Central Pacific might construct its line from the Pacific Cosas or Sacramento River to the same terms, practically, on which the eastern boundary of California on the same terms, pr which was to be met by the Southern Pacific at the State boundary.

Meanwhile Mr. Huntington had been active in gaining an important concession for the Central Pacific. Congress passed an act authorizing the road to build past its original limits to meet the Union Pacific.

In the summer of 1871 Mr. Huntington brought about the first of the signatic absorptions which gained for his road its nickname. A railroad known as the California Pacific had been formed to connect San Francisco and Sacramento, from Vallejo by sienmer and thence to Sacramento by riall. Huntington and his associates bought out the majority of the stock for 11,50,000 in bonds running twenty years at 6 per cent. Along with this road went several other projected concerns at one swallow. Among these were the California Pacific Extension and the San Francisco and North Pacific.

The Sacramento merchants and their were the California Pacific Extension and the San Francisco and North Pacific.

The Sacramento merchants and their little road now come to be known as "The Great Absorber" and "The Great Monopoly."

They had many bitter enemies in their schemes. Among these were the Pacific Mail steomer people, the California Steam Navigotion Company, Wells, Fargo & Co. and the California Stage Company. All sorts of trouble was thrown in the way of the road getting into San Francisco—which is a story by itself.

RACE FOR SUBSIDIES.

RACE FOR SUBSIDIES Mr. Huntington's last great feat in the building of the Central Pacific was

In the race for subsidies with the Union Pacific when the roads came near the meeting place.

The Union Pacific was actually grading 220 miles west of Ogden, but had not completed some of the intermediate line when the Central Pacific men appealed in dismay and alarm to Huntington. He told them to go ahead and build the road without respect to the other road. He said the rest could be left to him. It was. Crocker had 10,000 men at work and performed some of the most astonishing feats in the whole history of railroad construction. One day he is said to have laid ten miles of track. The roads met and passed each other.

After some dispute the meeting place was finally decided to be at Promontory Summit. Congress fixed the matter of the share of subsidies by locating the common terminus "at or near Ogden," the Union Pacific to build and the Central Pacific to pay for and own the road from the common terminus to Promontory Summit, where the rails met.

Hittell, the historian in writing of this stroke on the part of Mr. Huntington, says: "Like everything else

"At or near Ogden" turned out to be five miles west of Ogden and the Central Pacific secured the advantage of running to the business center of Utah and the Salt Lake region.

This was perhaps the greatest work of Huntington's life. Since then he has been among the foremost of that distinctly American product, the railroad magnate.

At the time of the San Pedro Harbor contest one of the advocates of San Pedro said to the government board that "Collis P. Huntington is the peer of any business man in this country or any other."

In addition to this great undertaking, Huntington also planned and perfected the whole California railroad system: built an Atlantic system. which by the Southern Pacific and Chesapeake and Ohlo railways formed a continuous line 4000 miles long, from San Francisco, and developed an ages greate of over 16.000 miles of steam water lines, including the route to China and Japan.

BAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14.—[Exclusan Francisco, Aug. 14.—(Excu-sive Dispatch.) For many years Hunt-ington was in material affairs the dominating personality of the Pacific Coast. His life epitomized the devel-opment of California. Coming with the Argonauts in 1849, and always leading in the expansion of business, Hunting-ton exercised an influence more farreaching than that of any other man The history of California with the name of Huntington omitted would have been a totally different story. No man gained stronger friends and no man was so thoroughly hated and abused. He personified the Southern Pacific Company, and his was the head that was always aimed at whenever that was always aimed at whenever the ramifications of that great corpor-ation touched tender spots in private pockets. Huntington was a lover of "the strenuous life," and was never schappy as when embroiled in the blood-happy as when embroiled in the blood-less but terrific battles of business.

Many stories ere told of Huntington's early life. It differed little from the lives of other poor boys who made, their way in the world. He was poor, but shrewd and saving. Habits of thrift clung to him through life; in-deed, it was often uncharitably said of him in late years that his thrift had degenerated into parsimonjousness. degenerated into parsimonjousness. While he made it a rule never to give a dollar to a man for charity's sake, he found the way to give employment to hundreds of deserving men, and his contributions to worthy institutions amounted to a large figure. Collis Potter Huntington was born October 22, 1821, at Harwinton, in Litchfield county, Ct. time between schooling and working, contributed to the gener alsupport of the family, and asked no one for pocket money, but always worked for it. Huntington was but 9 years of age when he earned his first dollar by stacking firewood for a neighbor. When he was 14 years of age his school days ended, and he bought his liberty, asking his father to give him his "time" on condition that he should thenceforth support himself. This request was made because of another New England custom for boys to serve their parents until they were of serve their parents until they were of age, this service entitling them to maintenance. He father consented, and Collis, deciding to begin life as a peddier, went to New York, being then but 15 years of age, and with the indorsement of a neighbor, who agreed to take up all of the lad's notes, secured a small stock of goods.

Beginning in this small way, the young man soon extended his business, and before he was 24, had traveled over a considerable portion of the Western serve their parents until they were of a considerable portion of the Western and Southern States. He then took an elder brother as partner, and set-tled at Oneonta, Oswego county, N. Y., as a country merchant.

Soon after, in September, 1844, he had got on sufficiently well in business to think of taking to himself a wife, and married Miss Elizabeth Stoddard, who came from Hutington's native county and who was a lady of good family and possessed of much courage and de-votion.

Huntington had been actively engaged in business for ten or twelve years when gold discoveries of California attracted him there. Arriving at San Francisco he saw at once that this city, then the rendezvous of idlers, was not the place for him, and on the very morning of his arrival, after taking a frugal breakfast, he hunted up a vessel going to Sacramento. He found a schooner, the master of which offered him a dollar an hour to help load her, an offer which he promptly accepted, and so earned his passage money. For four days he "tried his luck" in the mines, and became in that time convinced that gold digging had too many risks to be to his taste. had too many risks to be to his taste. He returned to Sacramento, again became a merchant, and began in a small tent and with a very limited supply of goods that business career in Califorgoods that business career in Califor-nia which made him, during many years, one of the foremost merchants of the State.

By purchase of ships' bread from vessels deserted by their crews and selling it at great advance when they sailed again for home, by buying sev-eral hundred grain cradles for almost nothing and retailing them at great profit, and by a thousand other simi-lerly shrewd bergains did Huntington add to his bank account, until it swelled to fair proportions. Next door to him, one Mark Hopkins kept a store also, until one day he sold out and thought he would retire. The men had become acquainted. Hopkins, coming from the hill country of Massachusetts, and Huntington from the neighboris

FROM HIS BIRTHPLACE.

(A. P. NIGHT REPORT.)

HARWINTON (Ct.,) Aug. 14.—Collis

P. Huntington was born here in an old-fashioned dilapidated house in the "Poverty Hill" district. The old house has been unoccupied for many years, and now is in the last stages of decay, His mother was a hard-working Christion woman, but the father was a man in whose make-up ombition had no part. He was a tinker, and traveled about the country mending umbrellas, sharpening razors, etc. The income of the elder Huntington was far too meager to supply the wants of his large family, and when Collis was 10 years of age, his parents separated, Mrs. Huntington going to make her home with friends, and the children being placed with different families.

Collis made his home with the family of Orza Barbier. Mrs. Barbier was an unusually intelligent woman, and to her training, Mr. Huntington, in the days of his success, always admitted, was due the fire of ambition which was early kindled in his breast. Collis was not particularly bright in his school days, and the 'ast day he attended was due the fire of ambition which was early kindled in his breast. Collis was not particularly bright in his school days, and the last day he attended a school of any sort, he had trouble with his toacher, Russell Wilson, and snatching his cap from the risk, made a bolt for the door, stopping on the threshold long enough to bid good-by to his schoolmates and to his teacher in a bit of verse which furnished considerable amusement for the public and a good deal of discomfort for the teacher. This hasty leave-taking occurred just before the boy was 14 years of age.

He never again returned to Harwinton to make it his home, but from time to time his successes in the financial world reiched the sars of his schoolmates, and fifteen years ago he returned to his native town and erected a memorial to his mother. Elizabeth Vincent Huntington, which will serve to perpetuate his name and his successes in Harwinton. The memorial was in the form of a massive granite chapel, erected at a cost of $50,000. When completed it was presented to the Congressional church at Harwinton, of which Mrs. Huntington was a member.

The Standard, after expressing the opinion that there is increasing ground to hope that the ministers will be rescued by the arrival of the allies at Peking tomorrow (Thursday.) if the initial rate of progress is maintained, goes on to deal with what would follow the rescue, and says it may be taken for granted that the policy attributed to the Washington Cabinet represents the absolute minimum of the demands of the combined powers. "The allied troops," says the St. Petersburg correspondent of the Times, having on August 9 occupied Ho Si Wu, have now moved on toward Muh Chang, without meeting any great opposition. The artillery is being moved astifactorily in spite of the bad roads, which the Japanese are engaged in repairing. AMERICAN GOVERNMENT'S VIEW

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—On general principles, the American government looks for a back-down on the part of China, a slow grudging compliance with our demands, and hedged about with as much delay as the intricacies of oriental diplomacy can procure. At the same time, if the rabid anti-foreign element is in control in Peking, as all advices seem to indicate, it would not be very whiprising if China relied on force to the last to check the advance of the internationals. The Chinese Minister was at the State Department early this morning and had a comparatively lengthy interyies with Acting Secretary Adee, Both parties to the conference declared that there was nothing new to be said. This was before the Conger message arrived. At this early meeting the Minister said that he had no news from China and had transmitted nothing new to the department. At the same time, it was strongly suspected that China had made some further tentative move as a final effort to test the determination of the United States in the firm stand it already has taken.

Secretary Root said that he had received nothing fresh from Gen. Chaffee and had no reason to believe it at China had made any move toward peace negotiations. The fact that the Chinese government has not yet repoiled to the American note of August 8 makes it seem questionable whether she intends to de so. Even allowing for delays in transmission, there has been abundant time for a reply to be transmitted, and its absence is causing some remarks in the State Department.

It is regarded as quite possible that both the Adee note of August 8, and the subsequent reply of the State De-Robbers Realize Less Than a Dollar on Both Jobs.

William P. Hooper, a cement contractor, who lives at No. 637% South Broadway, was held up at 8:15 o'clock last night on Buddong avenue, near the Rosedale schoolhouse, by three men, who relieved him of a pocket knife and fifteen cents. He had no watch or other valuables on his person, having carried only a little change for street cah fare. Hooper was greeted with the command, "Hands up," which was so familiar to belated pedestrians several months ago.

EIGHTY-CENT HOLD-UP.

EIGHTY-CENT HOLD-UP.

The second hold-up, perpetrated, in all probability, by two of the men who robbed Hooper, occurred at 11:55 p.m. at the corner of Figueroa and Tenth streets. The victim was F. M. Phelps, a clerk in the employ of the Southern Pacific Rallroad Company. Mr. Phelps had been spending the evening with friends, and was on his way to his home at No. 821 West Eleventh street. The tactics of the robbers were much the same as in the case of Mr. Hooper, with the exception that the men exhibited more nervousness and appeared to be in a hurry. They did not make a thorough search of Phelps's person. They took 80 cents in cash, leaving 10 cents in one of his pockets. They also relieved him of his watch, but upon second thought returned the timeplece and made off.

The footpads had their features covered with handkerchiefs. From their voices and general appearance Phelps thought that they were all young men. Their descriptions tailled closely with the men who held up Mr. Hooper.

Mr. Phelps telephoned the facts to the Police Station, and an officer was sent to his residence to secure a minute description of the footpads, while others were detailed to scour the city. All officers on bests were notified.

These are said to be the first genuine hold-ups since W. J. Breckinridgs was shot to death by footpads on the night of Saturday, June 2.

Nationals Only Condemn at Indianapolis.

[A.P. NIGHT REPORT.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind...) Aug. 14.—
The first day's session of the Nationals or third party convention, was devoted entirely to addresses, no formal action being taken beyond the appointment of a committee of three to confer with the anti-imperialists, whose convention will open tomorrow morning. The sentiment among the independents was strong against the candidacy of both McKinley and Bryan, and seemed to indicate that a third ticket would be the outcome of their convention, althought there is a desire to combine with the anti-imperialists, if possible, and there is scarcely a possibility of the anti-imperialists nominating a ticket.

refrain from voting, as they may choose.

About 250 delegates are already here, and enough more are expected during the night and tomorrow night to swell the number to six or seven hundred. The greater number of those who arrived tonight are, from Pennsylvania and New York. Among them were ex-Govs. Boutwell, Gamaliel Bradford, Moorefield Storey and Erwin Winslow of Massachusetts, George C. Mercer of Philadelphia, Pranklin Pierce of Philadelphia, and Robert C. Stevenson of Cincinnati. Ex-Gov. Boutwell will probably be permanent chairman of the convention.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 14.—Delegate

Carl Shurs, it is now known, will not be here, and in his place a speech in German will probably be delivered tomorrow night by Sigmund Zeisler of Chicago.

Bourke Cockran telegraphed Secretary Mize last night that there was no little doubt but that the would be here. The Executive Committee of the Anti-Imperialist League met this morning to arrange the programme for the convention, which will have its opening session at it o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Nationals, who are anti-imperialists, but who are also onti-silver, anti-Bryan and anti-McKinley, whose avowed purpose in attending the meeting is to swing the Anti-Imperialist League members to support them in maming a third ticket, met this afternoon at the essembly-room of the Commercial Club. The convention was called to order by Thomas M. Osborne of Aurora, N. T., and Lewis R. Ehrich of Colorado, permanent chairman, delivered an address, courtroom and somewhat bluntly announced that Slovensky had killed him he whole truth. She has since asserted. Had John Slovensky lived one day longer he might be alive today. He took his life just at the time when the worst of the prosecution's case had been presented; before any opportunity had been afforded his attorneys to cross-examine the prosecuting witness and before the defense had had an opportunity to present one particle of its evidence. The full extent of that defense may never be known, for there are many little points bearing upon this most peculiar case which would have been brought out in evidence, but which, now that the criminal case has been disposed of, will never be known. That there was a defense is certain.

THE SLOVENSKY SIDE.

To her attorneys and to one or two other persons, Mr. and Mrs. Slovensky told the entire story of their trouble with Maines, but it was told in confidence, and was not to be repeated until the proper time came, it being their purpose and that of their attorneys to give the prosecution all possible latitude, and then bring out the week points of that side and tell their own side. Mesers Variel and Meserve have repeatedly stated that they had a clear case and have expressed at all

As to the assault alleged to have been committed at the Garvanza Hotel last March. Mrs. Slovensky gave only her husband and the attorneys the full particulars. Her statement to them was that Maines had called at the hotel to fix certain bolts on doors; that he entered her room and made improper advances and then tried to assault her but did not succeed; that he them told her that if she said nothing about the mafter his conduct would be that of a gentleman, she having told him that if her husband knew of it there would be a tragedy.

her husband knew of it there would be a tragedy.

Slovensky was of a very jealous nature. The first time he ever saw Maines was at Avaion, July 8, at the Sea Beach Hotel. Maines was there only for the day, and he saw Mr. and Mrs. Slovensky at lunch, but according to his sworn statement he did not think they saw him. About 2 p.m. on that day he went to the hotel and walked past Mrs. Slovensky's room, the door of which was open. He then walked back and stopped, when Mrs. Slovensky invited him in and introduced him to her husband. They had a short conversation and Maines soon left. Slovensky has frequently asserted since that he could not tell what caused him to be jealous, but that to him there was a certain manner about Maines, a look in his eyes, or he imagined there was, which he did not like, and he distrusted him. After he left he asked his wife mained for a time in Mrs. Slovensky's room, the boy thought fixing a lock on the door.

Shortly after Maines's departure Mrs. Slovensky left the hotel with a lady friend and walked toward the bathhouse. Near that place Maines accosted her, and she then told him briefly of her husband's jealousy and told him not to talk to her, saying she would write to him telling him about it. He left and she did write, and the letter she sent him was presented in court as evidence. She told him in that letter to sign the name "Emma" to his reply.

Maines's reply to that letter is produced herewith. When Mrs. Slovensky received it she had gone to the post-office with her husband, and he saw her get it. He demanded to know whom it was from and she in sudden confusion did not then tell him. He was angry and snatched it from her hand, tearing it slightly. When he had read it he demanded to know who "Emma" was, and she could not answer to his satisfaction. That was late in the afternoon on July 11, and that night or the next is when occurred the scene between husband and wife near the Catalina golf links, which was described upon the witness stand. It was then that she told her husband that Maines's conduct toward her had not been what it should have been, but she did not tell him the whole truth. She has since asserted that had she told him all, she believed he would have killed Maines.

The Busy Store---Fourth and Broadway.

Slovensky first visited him. Maines's deposition shows that when Slovensky was ther? he used these words: "I have not come for money; I am not a med."

The next time Maines saw the Slovenskys was when they entered his store, saying to him that they had come to have him explain about that letter. The three then went to Maines's house. What occurred there is a much-disputed story. Maines's side of it has been given in court, but the Slovenskys' side has never been given, and can only be given from what they have repeatedly asserted since. That Slovensky did draw a pistol on Maines and threaten to kill him there is not disputed. Slovensky at that time had wrung a partial confession from his wife and thought her equally guilty with Maines. He did not then know that her story was that Maines had assaulted her, and his first effort was to make Maines confess the wrong he believed had been done his wife. According to Slovensky, Maines did confess, and with that confession Slovensky wilted and almost collapsed. Then, according to the Slovensky story, Maines himself broached the matter of financial settlement. At that time Slovensky had put away hi pistol. They have esaid that Maines suggested that he was willing to make provision for Mrs. Slovensky and her son, and at this Slovensky replied that that was all he wanted, that his life had been rulined, and that if it were done no more would be heard of him within three days. The excuse given by Maines for not then and there signing a deed to the Garvanza Hotel, the Slovenskys and she would of course have to join in the deed. He therefore gave the notes as security, and at his suggestion Slovensky wrote the notes. Maines meanwhile having ample opportunity to escape through an open door. What happened after the notes, were signed is told in Slovensky wrote the notes, maines meanwhile having ample opportunity to escape through an open door. What happened after the notes, maines meanwhile having ample opportunity to escape through an open door. What happened after the notes,

MAN OF EDUCATION. MAN OF EDUCATION.

Blovensky was highly educated. He spoke fluently Spanish, French and German, and was able to converse in other languages. He came to this country when a mere boy and was a firm believer in American institutions. At Pittsburgh he was the owner and editor of the American Slavonic Gazette, and was correspondent in a business way of several foreign banks, his business being with the many Sla-sette, and was correspondent in a business way of several foreign banks, his business being with the many Slavonians in the coal and coke regions of Pennsylvania who desired to send money home, or to transact any financial business. Since his death Mr. Variel has received a letter from the company which succeeded him to that business, and in it Slovensky is highly spoken of. A portion of the letter is as follows:

"Both of them (the Slovenskys) enjoy the very best of reputations. Mr. Slovensky not only as a business man, but as a sportsman, enjoys one of the best names in many States. He lived in Pittsburgh for about twelve or thirteen years, and his connections were always the very best. You can ask for information about him from W. T. Lindsey, United States District Clerk; I. E. Hirsch, editor and proprietor of the Volksblatt, the most prominent German newspaper in this part of the country; Dr. Joseph Stybr, Alleghany, Pa.: Dr. S. Goldman of Pittsburgh, one of the most prominent people of the most prominent people here. You can convince yourself that during all these years Mr. Slovensky never had any trouble and always had the best of reputation. The same is true of Mrs. Slovensky, whose home is in New Albany, Ind., where her family belongs to the best known in that State. If in any way, through affidavits from prominent people or otherwise, we can help our friends we will cheerfully do it."

The Santa Fé overland train which left this city at 7:30 o'clock last night bore eastward Mrs. Slovensky, her son and the body of her husband. She was hardly able to travel, but decided to undertoke the journey rather than remain longer on the scene of her tragic bereavement. She did not wait to secure the 31500 cash, the beil deposited for her husband, but she will receive that later through legal channels. The estate will not go through the hands of the Public Administrator, but a special executor of the will will be appointed, probably today, and the matter will take the regular course through the Probate Court. Accompanying Mrs. Slovensky and her son was Mrs. Johnson, wife of Dr. W. M. Johnson, whose former home was also at New Albany. Ind. They will arrive at home Saturday evening. LEFT FOR HER HOME.

CIVIL SERVICE DISCUSSED AT LAST NIGHT'S MEETING.

Civil service was the chief topic of discussion at the meeting of the Board of Freeholders at the City Council chamber last evening. Most of the members seemed to be in favor of the merit system, but there were those who expressed the opinion that the civil service measures were, in part, a cause for the defeat of the charter which went before the people in 1898.

N. P. Conrey, chairman of the Committee on Legislation, was the first member to suggest civil service. Gen. John R. Mathews spoke of the merit system in the Postoffice Department, with which he had considerable experience while in charge of the local postoffice. Most of the members agreed with him in theory, but there was doubt expressed that the system was practical for the municipal government.

with him in theory, but there was doubt expressed that the system was practical for the municipal government.

Members of several of the committees were unable to report progress, because as yet no general outlines of a policy have been adopted by the board. It was ordered that the next meeting of the board, Friday evening, be devoted extensively to an exchange of ideas as to the proper number of wards for the city and the number of Councilmen to be elected.

Chairman A. W. Hutton of the Judiciary Committee presented a report relative to how far the law of the State will be in effect respecting municipal affairs, on topics not specifically provided for by the charter and on how comprehensive the provisions of the new charter, should be.

After reviewing the State law on the subject and specifying what features should be touched in the proposed instrument, such as police and fire commissions, courts and other municipal departments, the report stated that it was the opinion of the committee that as to the matters specifically mentioned in the State law, the provisions of a freeholders' charter, regularly adopted, supersede and control general laws of the State would apply to such city.

In closing the report recommended that the charter should be as specific as possible, thereby avoiding a most prolific cause of littgation.

The Room Committee reported that offices had been secured for the secretary of the board, and for committee meetings in the Copp buildins, No. 218

CADETS MUST BE GOOD. MOST SEVERE PUNISHMENT IN-FLICTED AT WEST POINT.

NEW YORK: Aug. 14.—Forty cadets at the West Point Military Academy have been sentenced to the most severe punishment ever inflicted in the course of discipline at the institution. The penalties include shortening of furloughs, details to detested guard duty in the area and confinement to barracks limits for long terms, which will prevent participation in "hops" and make attendance at football games out of the question.

The punishments were inflicted because the guilty ones had greeted Tactical Officer Lindsay with "Silence" when he entered the mess hall. This was because he had reported the 1903 class for hasing a "piebe" and it is this class that will suffer.

Anarchistic Plot

President McKinley Marked for Assassination.

derers Makes a Confession.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(Exclusive Dispatch.) Lots were cast on May 1 by anarcvhists for the assassination of rulers. By the first lot Gaetano Bresci was selected to kill King Humbert. By the second, an unknown was chosen to alay President McKinley. Another was also named to assassinate President Loubet of France, Emperor William of Germany or the Emperor of Austria. The Italian Consul-General in this city was informed, May 16, of the plan to kill King Humbert, and the authorities at Washington of the conspiracy to assassinate President Meg. Kinley.

Such are the startling statements made in a letter signed by C. Luigi Alfiert, who says he is a member of the anarchistic society of Paterson, N. J., and addressed to Sig. Barsotti, editor of El Progresso Itale-Americano. Alfiert's story is most remarkable. The fact that Chairman Odell of the Republican State Committee was warned of a plot to assassinate the President lends credence to his statements.

In his letter, which really amounts to a confession, Alfiert says as soon as knew the real objects of the organization he was anxious to withdraw. Friends warned him that to attempt to withdraw would mean death. He remained in the society, but with a determination to gain all its secrets. He attended the meetings of the society for nine months.

to assassinate King Humbert. He writes:

"On May 1 of this year lots were cast for the infamous enterprise. The first was Gaetano Breeci's chance for the assassination of the bemoaned King of Italy; the second one Arturo Glovanelli's for the killing of President McKinley. Lots were drawn to kill the Emperor of Germany, Emperor of Austria and the President of France, Loubet."

The writer adds that on May 16 he notified the Italian Consul. Branchi, of the intention to kill King Humbert and that he also sotified the Federal government that President McKinley was to be assassinated. He explains that his conscience compels him to write the truth of the matter. Consul Branchi laughed when shown the letter.

KNEW "LA BELLA THERESA."

the truth of the matter. Consul Branchi laughed when shown the letter.

KNEW "LA BELLA THERESA."

[A. P. DAY REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Emanuel M. Friend, an attorney of this city, claims to have known "La Bella Theresa" of anarchistic fame, who was arrested in Paris, and says her real name is Mrs. Theresa Ighani. He says:

"About a year ago an Italian named La Guardia affronted her. The woman apparently ignored the insult and fooled the man into believing she was in love with him. One night in her place she gave him a glass of wine. While he was drinking she threw vitriol in his face. Then she dragged him to a basin and threw water in his face, causing the vitriol to burn more severely than ever.

"La Bella's mother lives in New Britain. Ct. where her father was a wealthy fruit dealer. He often came to this city and about six months agonis body was picked out of the North River. He had been struck on the head and his pockets rified."

Testerday, the second day in the sixteenth annual tournament of the Southerm California Lawn Tennis Association, was productive of much more interest than Monday. The first day was devoted to snudfing out some of the lesser lights in the gentiemen's singles. Yesterday the singles were narrowed down pretty near to the semi-finals, so that today will see some fast tennis in the matches between the best men.

The judgment of the management in placing four men, A. E. Bell, C. P. Murdock, Reuben Hunt and J. R. Britton, with a view to their meeting in the semi-finals and not before, has thus far proved good. The finals of one half have already been reached. They will be played today between A. E. Bell of Los Angeles and J. R. Britton of Pasadena. On the other side the semi-finals are being neared. They will be contested by the winner of the Hunt-South match against Frits Over-

This litigation is one of the last chapters in the story of the "offal" money that has raised such a laugh-able stench between two county offi-

"That plaintiff has since demanded of said defendant the said balance of $2.50 due upon said warrant.

Easterly is said to be a very bad little boy. Even his mother is compelled to say so, and the neighbors of the family willingly corroborate her. The boy has persistently refused to mind his parents, balks at going to school, and delights in running away from home. His young life has also been checkered by the recent stealing of twelve chickens, which he sold to a Downey hotel, and then skipped to Oxnard.

It was said of him yesterday, in the hearing of the court, that he has a predisposition to theft. He is a most nonchalant lad.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY IGNORED.
The advice of the District Attorney in the matter has evidently had no weight with the Coroner. When the fight first, broke out, he rushed pelimell into the presence of Chief Deputy Wilbur and demanded to know what he should do. He was promptly told that the money he had refused was certainly legal tender, and the best thing for him to do would be to take it and get rid of it as soon as possible. In other words he was informed that all honest money smells alike to the nose of, the law. Notwithstanding this advice, however, the Coroner has a case but he intends to proceed just as if there were one. He will tender the controverted coins in court—and feels fhat the Coroner has a case but he intends to proceed just as if there were one. So long as his wife had any resources the Sellicks traveled in grand style about the country, and lived at the best hotels. Mrs. Sellick's income ceased soon after the couple came to Los Angeles last December, and they soon exhausted their credit at all the leading hotels in the city, and some at the seashore. Sellick tried various impractical schemes to raise the wind, but the shekels were not forthcoming. The jewelry and surplus clothing of the pair were pawned, in a desperate effort to keep the grim wolf from the door. Once in awhile Mrs. Sellick received a loan or remittance from friends or relatives that temporarily releved their distress, but her relatives refused to do more for her unless she separated herself from her erratic spouse, who appeared to be of no account except to waste her substance.

AFFIXING SIGNATURES. Under may circumstances the time and able involved in signing letters, or-, etc.. In even a large business is considerable, but sometimes when a large number of documents—such, to considerable, but sometimes when a corry large number of documents—such, for instance, as receipts—are to be signed, says an English trade paper, the time involved amounts to a good deat, to say nothing of the terribly subpotonous task of writing flour after hear without once exercising the brain. The problem of finding a substitute for she actual written signature is one that has been thought of by professional men for a long time past. It is say to get a rubber stamp made in exact facsimils of the written signature, but to affix this is not a legal method of signing, although it answers the purpose in the case of ordinary somespendence. The pian adopted by some of the insurance companies appears to solve the problem very neatly. They have on their receipts, which are lithegraphed, a faccimile of a signature with the upper portion of one of the capital letters left blank. The manager or secretary who signs such documents simply adds with his pen the upper portion of this letter, and this is sufficient to make the signature a good one from a legal point of view, while it is, of course, much quicker than eligning at length.

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 14.—[Regular Correspondence.] Members of the party which returned from Santa Crus Island yesterday on the yacht Ariel, report a nocturnal adventure with wild hogs. Seyeral of the men were spending a night ashore in a vicinity where some dead seals lay on the beach, and by these the undomesticated porkers were attracted. All the guns had been left on the yacht and for a time it looked as though there might be a desperate and unequal struggle, but the hogs finally decamped, squealing and grunting viciously. "This is an ideal food and evidently furnishes the elements necessary for a baby as well as for adulta. We have used Grape-Nuts in large quantities and -AwaT 'M' and Minn.

One advantage about Grape-Nuts Food is that it is predigested in the process of manufacture; that is, the starch contained in the wheat and barley is fransformed into grape sugar in exactly the same method as this process is carried out in the human body, that is by the use of moisture and long exposure to moderate warmth, which grows the disstance in the grains and makes the remarkable change from starch to grape sugar. Therefore, the most delicate stomach can handle Grape-Nuts and the food is quickly absorbed into the blood and tissue, certain parts of it going directly to building and nourishing the brain and nerve centers.

day, The selling has been something phenomenal-beyond our expectations, and more rapid than we have ever before known. The half price magnet has worked wonders with these waists. It first drew our buyers' attention to an overstocked factory in New York city. It is now drawing shirt waist buyers by the hundred. People look upon the immense tables in wonder and surprise. Then they look into the bottom of their purses for the last half dollar that can be spared for shirt waists. There is something magical about them; possibly it is their pretty styles, or may be their excellent making, but it is more likely the fact that they are half price. Every conceivable style is included, plain white, plain black, solid colors, striped fabrics, dots, figures, scrolls, everything. The prices are 39c, 49c, 75c, 95c, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75, and each price is exactly half value.

Tan Shoes are on the Run.

A timely sale. Tan shoes are going at reduced prices while they are most wanted. We were most fortunate in this purchase. Our buyer secured a few thousand pairs of tan shoes for men, women and children at prices which barely cover the cost of making. They are all stylish and up-to-date, and they are all from reputable shoe makers. The same factories made these shoes who make shoes for our regular stock. But these particular ones happened to be made for some Eastern dealers who were slow in paying their bills. Our buyer stepped in with unlimited cash and secured the goods at his own price. Black shoes are included in our shoe sale, but today we call your attention especially to shoes, because they are in such great demand at the present time.
